

Helmack Engineering Ltd

NZTTMF Member Since: 2001

Versatility is the watchword for this central Canterbury company.

Owner, Allan McCormick, promises that he and his team can turn their hand to just about anything in the engineering arena. And, having been in business for 42 years, Helmack Engineering has done just that.

Today, Helmack boasts an impressive array of design and build products, truck decks, curtain siders, tip decks and trailers.

Significantly, for a company largely serving the rural sector, Helmack also manufactures sheep and cattle loading ramps, dog motels and horse floats. All are manufactured with meticulous precision, and Allan personally oversees quality control.

He says working in a close community such as Ashburton brings a special "feel" to his company. He knows all of his customers personally and, more important, he understands what they need and is able to deliver it. Whilst he has a core range of products, he is more than happy to make adaptations to suit the requirements of individual customers.

He also undertakes general engineering and will design and build anything from scratch after detailed discussion with the customer.

Allan takes particular pride that a big part of his business is repeat business. "That's another benefit of being part of a close community," he says. "You earn a reputation if you do your work well and that reputation becomes your best advertising."

If you are in Ashburton, drop in. Allan can always find time for a chat. And he will proudly show you his production line and range of accessories.

The address is 92 Dobson Street, Ashburton.
