

Morgan Engineering Ltd - NZTTMF Member Since: 1994

John Sherwood is just the second owner of Morgan Engineering Ltd. Not bad for a business that has been going for more than three decades.

And certainly it is testimony to the consistency of service and management experience that are the hallmarks of this Whangarei-based trailer builder.

John purchased the business off founder-owner, Brian Morgan, in 2006.

The company had already earned an enviable reputation for building heavy vehicle trailers and manufacturing steel and aluminium bins on tip trucks.

In fact, they were renowned nationally for their craftsmanship in these areas.

John wanted to retain that; it was kudos to the company. However, he wanted something more—something added. He wanted to build a company, and a reputation, in structural sales.

He succeeded. Today Morgan Engineering has a reputation for building large well-built trailers—trailers that are known throughout New Zealand for their durability and resilience under the most trying of conditions.

For the current portfolio that means everything from aluminium tip units, through to flat decks, tankers and curtainsiders. Morgan Engineering also designs and manufactures heavy duty safety cabs for the forestry industry, have a fully-equipped structural engineering department, a precision machine shop, guillotine and press facilities, and a chassis straightening pad which is used mainly for insurance work.

All told, that makes Morgan Engineering—as John says of his quality focussed team: “one of the best and most versatile truck and trailer fabrication workshops in New Zealand.”

If you are a transport operator, they are certainly worth having a chat with.

And for anyone who would like to be part of a highly-motivated team and has experience in heavy fabrication Morgan Engineering would also like to hear from you. They offer interesting work, a great Whangarei lifestyle and the chance to be part of a team that is really among the very best.
